The Vancouver Pacific line of steamers from Vancouver to Japan and China cost about $500,000 annually in subsidies. A competing American line in the Asiatic trade earns $6,300 by carrying the United States mails.

The Toronto Globe declares that "the exit of President Harrison excites no interest in Canada." Certainly not. President Harrison administered his office for the benefit of the United States and not of foreigners.

Myra Clark Gaines left an estate worth $925,000 when she died in 1887. The lawyers have absorbed $900,000 of it in fighting over her will, and hope to be able to get away with the remainder in the new trial which they have just commenced.

Under the reciprocity treaty with Spain our export trade with Cuba increased in one year from $100,000 to $1,789,014. The trade in breadstuffs increased more than 300 per cent. Of course, the Democratic war on the "free tariff" must include the "reciprocity fraud."

The last Democratic House appropriated $1,027,000,000—the highest record. The preceding House, of what was known in last fall's campaign as the "Billion-dollar Congress," appropriated $808,000,000—a difference of $219,000,000. Therefore, the Democratic howl about a "Billion-dollar Congress" will remain hushed.

Taxes, except for revenue, are unjustifiable, says Mr. Cleveland's inaugural. Then the tax on state bank currency is unjustifiable. It is one tax authorized by Federal law whose object is wholly distinct from revenue considerations. It is the only barrier between the people and depreciated money, but it must be repealed according to Mr. Cleveland's express declaration.

The gift of twenty acres of land on Jamestown Island, embracing the old historic burial grounds and church ruins, is a thoughtful and patriotic act on the part of the donor, the owner of the property. The Society for the Preservation of Virginian Antiquities is made the custodian of this vestige of the first permanent English settlement in the United States, and will take early steps to protect and improve it. No spot in the United States possesses more romantic memories, and it is a public duty to rescue and preserve such places, so full of valuable teachings, from decay.

During his recent visit to New York John Jefferson had occasion to have a check cashed. The bank was in Fifth avenue, but the Cashier did not know Mr. Jefferson and refused to cash the order until its bearer was identified. The distinguished comedian could not spare time to go in search of somebody to vouch for him and he exclaimed ruefully, "Off me tawg Schneider was here I dinks he would know me." At the sound of these familiar yet odd accents the bookkeeper, who had recently enjoyed the performance of "Rip Van Winkle," turned around in his chair, gazed smilingly on Mr. Jefferson, and immediately identified him to the satisfaction of the paying teller.

The oldest Postmaster in the service, according to Marshall Cushing in his book, "The Story of our Postoffice," is Rowell Beardsley at North Lansing, N. Y. Mr. Beardsley was appointed during the administration of President John Quincy Adams in 1826. He is now 85 years old, and has held office consecutively for sixty-five years. It is hardly necessary to add that he is a Democrat. "During all these years," said Mr. Cushing, "Mr. Beardsley has conducted his office to the entire satisfaction of the public, and he has never been reprimanded for failure to perform his duties. He has never been in Washington. The office now pays $170 a year. The first year of his service his pay was $19.53.

"President Cleveland," says a prominent physician, "differs from the majority of corpulent men in one respect. He does not appear to have a lazy bone in his body. Ordinarily a man of Mr. Cleveland's proportions is fond of his ease and possesses a sluggish temperament. Mr. Cleveland seems to revel in work as is evinced by his turning out at 7 o'clock in the morning and remaining at his desk until long after midnight. No one can accuse the President of idleness. But he is very foolish to go contrary to all the laws of health as he has done. I will venture to say that not one man in a thousand could have safely risked the exposure Mr. Cleveland has subjected himself to on the day of his inauguration. To medical men his remaining uncovered for any length of time in a raging blizzard was a foolhardy act. The strongest constitution will break down under such treatment. Mr. Cleveland has arrived at a time of life when he behooves him to be careful of his health."

A CURIOUS discovery was some years ago made among the archives at Southampton of a box containing the original naval laws of that port as early as the fourteenth century. One of them was that if the majority of the sailors of a vessel on the point of sailing were of the opinion that the wind was unfavorable, and the vessel was wrecked afterward, the captain was responsible for the value of the goods lost.

TWO WORTHY CITIZENS

MAYVILLE LOSES BOLECE JANUARY AND ANDERSON FINECH.

They Pass Away Within a Few Hours of Each Other—One at His Home in This City and the Other in Southern Georgia.

"Horse January is dead!"

Such was the exclamation of almost every citizen late yesterday afternoon and last night.

It had been known to his family and immediate friends for several days past that his life was rapidly approaching its end. The final dissolution came at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home on West Front Street. He was conscious to the last and fully realized the situation and the inevitable.

For the greater part of his life he was a splendid specimen of physical manhood, robust in frame and clear in intellect. With late years came disease and affliction and a bright and consistent existence became clouded by despair. But the sorrow of those near him concerned him but with his own affliction. His friends gathered closer about him and the sympathy felt and expressed was unbounded and sincere.

Horse January was born in this city forty-seven years ago. He was the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. January. His father was one of the most popular and successful business men who ever lived in Mayville. The whole life of the son has been spent here. He early gained friends by his pleasing personality and charming manners. His popularity increased with time and but few who have lived here were so generally beloved.

He was elected Mayor in 1881 and held the office continuously for five terms. His official career was marked by exemplary conduct of affairs. He was also at one time a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in this District.

When the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, convened in this city in May, 1891, Mr. January was elected the Grand Commander. He has always been a prominent figure in Masonic circles.

Grand Commander Charles H. Fisk of Covington has been notified of his death. He was one of the original 52-53 pilgrims who have become famous in the annals of Mayville Commandery No. 10.

His surviving family consists of his wife, who was a daughter of David Wilson of Flemingsburg, and four children, two sons, Dr. Wilson and A. M. January, who are in business at Flemingsburg, and two daughters, Misses Mary Huston and Hattie January.

The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning from his late residence on Front street and will be private. The service will be conducted by Rev. C. J. Nugent of the Episcopal Church, St. Paul's.

Governor Brown Declines to Pardon William Price, and Tells Why.

The LEXINGTON some days ago mentioned the fact that a lengthy petition had been sent from this city to the Governor, praying a pardon for William Price, sentenced to one year in the penitentiary for shooting Officer Stockdale.

With nearly 70,000 post offices in the country and an average of ten Democrats for each who are ready to "dedicate" themselves to the "service," President CLEVELAND should not run away with the idea that he is alone in the self-ebullient business.

Four years ago there were just three modern war vessels in commission in the American Navy. To-day there are seventeen. The number of war vessels launched during HARRISON'S Administration is twenty-two. The contracts for new vessels in this period represent a cost of $35,000,000.

HARRISON laid down and CLEVELAND took up a burden of National debt reduced during the past four years nearly $300,000,000, with an interest charge reduced from $37,000,000 in 1889 to less than $23,000,000 in 1893. The retiring President left for the emulation of his successor the record of $3,390,000,429 of collected and disbursed in four years without any single instance of default, without one cent not perfectly accounted for, without a breath of scandal affecting any department entrusted with the management of this stupendous business.

HARRISON turned over to CLEVELAND a national credit unexcelled, if equaled, by that of any Nation on the globe, a credit so good that to-morrow, if it be found necessary to issue bonds to replenish the gold reserve, they can be sold at or above par, though bearing interest at only 3 per cent. per annum. Our credit is what it is because, among other reasons, a long succession of Republican Administrations has stood like a wall of adamant against repeated Democratic attempts at greenbacking, and "paying" the Government's bonds with irredeemable paper promises against such assaults upon the public credit, for instance, as the resolution adopted by the Democratic Convention of 1876 that demanded the immediate repeal of the Resumption Act, an act under which the paper money was brought up to par with gold and kept there ever since.

THE TWO RIVALS

Senator Hill Makes a Call on President Cleveland.

The Two Were Closeted Together for Fully Twenty Minutes.

The interview was of a strictly private character. But there can be no doubt that it was more than a mere official call.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Senator Hill called at the executive mansion Thursday and was closeted with President Cleveland for 20 minutes.

The one great feature of interest in political circles Thursday was this visit to his greatest political rival. Senator Hill came to the white house Thursday morning by appointment, presumably arranged by Congressman Rockwell, of New York, during the latter's visit to Mr. Cleveland on Tuesday.

It lasted twenty minutes, and during that time Mr. Cleveland received no cards from the waiting politicians in the cabinet room.

Mr. Hill came early. The great flood of office-seekers had not begun to flow into the white house when he arrived. He passed rapidly through the hallways to the room of Private Secretary Thurston, who evidently had been requested, for he received Mr. Hill into an adjoining executive office without a moment's delay.

When Mr. Hill entered the president's room, word was sent to Doorkeeper Loeffer that Mr. Cleveland was very busily engaged and could not see any visitors for some time. As a consequence, the arriving delegation soon filled the cabinet room, and by the time Mr. Hill left the white house there were more men than seats in the apartment.

The interview was, of course, of a strictly private character, but from the fact that it had been previously arranged and from the fact that there can be little doubt that it was more than a mere official call. Mr. Hill, by virtue of his office as senator from the State of New York, would be obliged by the unwritten code of official etiquette to call on a new president elected by his party.

But an official visit of this character would not last more than a minute—in fact, just long enough for the caller to shake the president's hand and to make a few pleasant remarks about the condition of the thermometer. Twenty minutes is the usual length of time for any caller—no matter how distinguished—to remain in the president's room during these busy days in the executive mansion, and if Mr. Hill and Mr. Cleveland talked six or seven minutes, it was a record.

When Mr. Hill had finished with the president he lost no time in leaving the white house and walked rapidly away with Col. John S. McHenry, of New York, who had been a member of Mr. Cleveland's staff while the latter was governor of New York.

NEW BRITISH COINS.

The claim Made by Them That They Excel All Others in Beauty.

LONDON, March 10.—Money was accepted Thursday by the treasury for a new issue of coins. According to the drawings the new coins will be the most beautiful ever minted. The gold piece has for the obverse an impression of the queen, and for the reverse the image of St. George, armed and mounted on a horseback. The £2 piece, sovereign and half-sovereign are similar in design. The silver crown, or five-shilling piece, has the same design on the reverse, but instead of being milled the edge bears a Latin motto in raised letters. The half crown, or two-shilling piece, carries the armorial ensign of the United Kingdom, and the florin bears the national arms of Scotland, Ireland and England, combined with the three crowns, thistle, shamrock and rose. The smaller pieces, including the subsidiary coinage known as the Queen's maundy money, fourpence, threepence, twopenny and one penny, are similar in design to the coins of higher denominations.

DOWN GOES THE GOLD.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The treasury gold Wednesday went down to within a million of the hundred millions gold reserve. This is the lowest point touched for many years. To meet possible demands, however, and to save the heavy expense of the shipment of the million accepted by the treasury, the nearest sub-treasuries, including Cincinnati, were called upon to cancel gold certificates.

Big Deal From a Woman's Pocket.

New York, March 10.—Mrs. M. J. Washburn, the head purchaser for a large military firm in Chicago, came to this city yesterday to purchase a part of the spring stock, and brought with her a draft for a considerable sum of money and $1,000 in cash. While on Broadway, Wednesday, her pocket was picked and her pocketbook, containing the money and draft, was taken.

A Hoosier Hurricane.

Wednesday evening, March 10.—A tornado struck this town at 8 o'clock, and Wednesday evening and damaged much property. Many buildings were unroofed, chimneys, trees, sheds, fences and buildings blown down. At Brooklyn the Masonic and K. of P. halls and also Seller's and Richards' buildings were unroofed. Heavy rain accompanied the storm. No lives were lost.

Count Von Bismarck Dying.

GOLD OFFERS.

Chicago Has $500,000 for Treasurer Callahan—The Reserve to Be Kept Up by Bankers.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Secretary Carlisle Thursday morning authorized the announcement that he would accept all the power and discretion vested in him to uphold the credit of the government and to maintain the parity of gold and silver. This statement was made to brush away the endless string of rumors that have gained circulation about what he would do as to maintaining the gold reserve intact, as to issuing bonds, or as to paying United States notes and United States treasury notes in silver when gold was exhausted, etc. The example Denver, Co., in offering $1,000,000 in gold Wednesday for treasury notes has been followed by Chicago bankers, who Thursday offered $500,000 in gold for United States notes.

At the treasury department it is thought that bankers in other cities will do likewise. There is a feeling of relief as to the gold balance at the treasury, and unless exports of gold on Saturday are unusually heavy, of which no information has yet been received, the treasury department will have ample gold to supply the demand.

STRANGE ACCIDENT.

One Man's Heart Split and Another's Arm Wrenched in a Saw Mill.

WATERBURY, Mich., March 10.—Herman Meinke and Amos Coan were using an old-fashioned machete saw converting a lot of timber into logs and staves. Meinke placed the log on a saw and knotty piece of wood on the table.

While he adjusted it he and Coan, who stood directly back of him, were engaged in conversation. When the blade had dug its way about half through the wood it struck a snag and the saw leaped from his bearings.

In its flight through the air it took a slightly upward direction and the blade struck Meinke squarely in the breast.

Meinke, who was standing with his feet made of paper, and, striking the heart full in the center, cut that organ in two.

Meinke was thrown backwards by the force of the blow, and the saw, thus released, flew over the dead man's shoulder, and striking Coan on the left arm, cut that member off about four inches below the shoulder. The accident was caused by the breaking of a wooden screw with which the saw had been fastened to the frame.
